ILLEGIB

Dear Mrs. Fitzgerald:

Thank you very much for your telephone call of May 28 informing me that the Director believes he could meet with the Overseas Writers in September. The Overseas Writers, as you may know, is one of the oldest journalistic fraternities in Washington having been formed by the American correspondents in 1921 who covered the Versailles Peace Conference. It is my hope that Mr. Bush, when he comes, might be able to talk a bit about (1) the intelligence community following a year's congressional investigation and the Feb. 18 executive order, and (2) what seems to be happening in China.

Again, may I thank you for your kind cooperation. We are greatly looking forward to the Director's appearance.

Sincerely,

Nicholas Daniloff

President of the Overseas Writers
